Vodafone and Microsoft Collaborate to Deliver Comprehensive Email Solution for Business

Vodafone launches new Windows Mobile Direct Push email solution

for business customers

BARCELONA Feb. 13, 2006 Today at 3GSM World Congress 2006, Vodafone and Microsoft Corp. announced the European launch of Windows Mobile Email from Vodafone. This solution is based on Microsoft® Windows Mobile® 5.0 and incorporates the Messaging and Security Feature Pack (MSFP) which includes Direct Push Technology and enhanced security features.

From March, Vodafone will deploy a range of Windows Mobile 5.0-powered devices with Direct Push Technology to corporate and small and medium sized business (SMB) customers in France, Germany and the UK. The service will also be available to corporate and SMB customers in other countries during 2006.

Windows Mobile Email from Vodafone enables customers to enjoy a Direct Push email service on the move in a format that anyone familiar with Microsoft Office will recognize. Emails and tasks are synchronized directly from Outlook®, and Microsoft Office Excel® Mobile and Word Mobile attachments can be viewed, edited and returned. Having a common email experience across the PC and Vodafone Windows Mobile-powered device makes service adoption simple and accelerates delivery of the benefits that mobile email brings to business customers.

As well as delivering a great user experience across a range of the latest Vodafone Windows Mobile-powered devices, Windows Mobile Email from Vodafone easily integrates with customers' Microsoft Exchange Server 2003 software, making Windows Mobile Email a highly cost-effective, scalable and security-enhanced way to deliver the benefits of email on the move without the need for investment in additional servers or hardware.

Mobile email is a simple, security-enhanced and easy to set up service which enables customers to remain productive, responsive and organized when out of the office said Peter Bamford, Chief Marketing Officer at Vodafone. Windows Mobile Email from Vodafone delivers a mobile email service which seamlessly extends the Microsoft Office desktop environment and rapidly captures the benefits for business that mobile email brings.

We are delighted to be partnering with Vodafone to deliver a mobile messaging solution for a diverse range of business customers, said Pieter Knook, Senior Vice President, Mobile and Embedded Devices Division and Communications Sector, Microsoft Corp. It's an exciting time for companies who are now realizing the true business potential of mobile solutions for both the business and for their employees. Our combined teams are focused on delivering the most compelling and innovative mobile solutions to meet these customer demands.

ORANGE AND VODAFONE TO LINK MOBILE INSTANT MESSAGING COMMUNITIES

13 February 2006, 3GSM World Congress, Barcelona. Orange Group and Vodafone Group (the companies) today announced they are finalising an agreement to be the first multi-national mobile operators to launch Instant Messaging interoperability, with the intention to link Instant Messaging communities using the familiar calling party pays principle.

Working under the open standard interoperability principles, established by the GSM Association, Orange and Vodafone customers will be able to send and receive Instant Messages to friends and family seamlessly across each others mobile networks.

As we have seen over the last few years, service interoperability has unlocked the true potential for mobile. While we, as mobile operators, need to compete at the retail level, we must also continue to work together at the service interoperability level in order to stimulate customer demand and to continue to grow our industry, said Arun Sarin, Chief Executive at Vodafone. With the support of the GSM Association, we hope to encourage all mobile operators to adopt this open, interoperable approach to instant messaging services, to ensure our customers benefit from seamless services in an environment they trust.

The companies are actively seeking engagement from other mobile operators and ISPs to adopt the same open standard approach, in order to stimulate customer demand and drive the continued success of mobile messaging services. To date, the companies have received support and interest from China Mobile, O2 UK, Telefonica Movile Espana, T-Mobile International and Turkcell.

Like Vodafone, we re very supportive of the GSMA principles which aim to make mobile/personal Instant Messaging accessible, interoperable, safe and secure. We also fully support the wider work that the GSMA is undertaking on IP interworking.

We re really excited about the potential of IM and building on the already proven success of text-based conversation as evidenced by the phenomenal growth of SMS over mobile and IM on PCs. Initially, we think it will be the youth market who will find mobile IM appealing but we expect it to be adopted by a much wider audience over time, comments Sanjiv Ahuja, CEO, Orange Group.

Notes to Editors

Orange has already launched its own mobile messaging service, Orange Messenger, in France with further launches planned later in the year in the UK, Romania and the Netherlands. It will also launch a converged Instant Messaging service that will be common to both Orange and Wanadoo customers. Access to Orange Messenger will be simple and easy for customers to use as they will have a single buddy list, one set of contacts and the same look and feel whether they are accessing the service via PC or mobile.

Vodafone has its own mobile instant messaging service, called Vodafone Messenger, which is currently available in 11 countries. In addition, in two countries Vodafone offers a converged Vodafone Messenger service, through the provision of a PC client version of Vodafone Messenger. In June 2005, Vodafone and MSN announced an agreement, to enable seamless instant messaging between MSN PC users and Vodafone Messenger customers.

VODAFONE AND GOOGLE TEAM TO CREATE INNOVATIVE MOBILE SEARCH EXPERIENCE FOR MOBILE PHONE USERS

Vodafone today announced that it is collaborating with Google to develop innovative mobile search services for its customers.

Vodafone will integrate Google's search capability into its consumer service, Vodafone live!, providing customers with the most relevant information, wherever they are and whatever time of day it is.

Google's search results will be delivered through Vodafone's high speed data networks. Combining Vodafone's mobile expertise with Google's search capability will ensure that customers can quickly and easily find what's relevant to them. The new service will offer simultaneous search both on Vodafone live! and the wider Web.

Vodafone's integration of Google search will take the mobile internet to a new level. Vodafone live! was the first mobile service to make data services easily accessible to mobile customers. Whether checking the weather, looking for a restaurant or getting the most up-to-date news, consumers want search services that meet their everyday needs.

Alan Harper, Group Strategy Director, Vodafone, said:

Innovative mobile search will become increasingly important as fast and easy access to information and services are increasingly demanded by customers on the move. Together, Vodafone and Google will focus on creating the best mobile search service in the market, helping to bring the mobile internet to life. Our customers will be able to find relevant information and services faster, making the Vodafone live! customer experience even better. Our intention is to develop our relationship with Google to ensure Vodafone customers continue to have the very best in mobile services.

Nikesh Arora, Vice President, European Operations, Google Inc., said:

As people become more mobile, it's increasingly important that we can provide them with access to information when on-the-go. Google understands that mobile phone users are looking for more than a desktop replacement—they want directly relevant content, quickly. Vodafone has long been a pioneer in providing mobile data services to its customers and we believe that by working together we will ensure a user friendly experience for mobile users.

Edgar Filing: VODAFONE GROUP PUBLIC LTD CO - Form 6-K

Vodafone and Google will be holding a joint press conference at 1400 to 1500 CET at the GSMA Seminar Theatre, Hall 5, Level 2. The press conference will be presented by Alan Harper, Group Strategy Director, Vodafone Group and Nimesh Arora, Vice President, European Operations, Google Inc.

VODAFONE SIGNS STRATEGIC 3G HANDSET PARTNERSHIP WITH HUAWEI

Vodafone Group and Huawei Technologies announced today a landmark agreement that will see the Chinese manufacturer supply exclusive Vodafone-branded consumer 3G handsets for Vodafone across 21 countries for at least 5 years.

The handsets will only carry the Vodafone name, the first time the company has offered devices branded in this way for the consumer market. The agreement demonstrates Vodafone's ability to utilise its scale to deliver increasing value to its customers.

The agreement marks Huawei's first significant entry into the European handset market. Vodafone anticipates offering the first Vodafone-branded, Huawei-manufactured handset, a 3G model, in September 2006.

Peter Bamford, Chief Marketing Officer, Vodafone Group said: This agreement with Huawei shows the cost benefits Vodafone's size and global reach can bring to our customers. We will be able to offer even better 3G phones at more competitive prices across our markets.

Ping Guo, Senior Vice President of Huawei Technologies said: This agreement will enable Huawei to become one of the world's leading players in handset development and production. We already have a strong presence in the global market and this agreement offers us a great opportunity to expand into new regions alongside the world's leading mobile community. We consider the partnership with Vodafone as a sign of the trust they have in the quality of our research and production.

VODAFONE WINS GSM ASSOCIATION BEST ROAMING PRODUCT OR SERVICE AND BEST BROADCAST COMMERCIAL AWARDS

At the 2006 GSM Association Awards Ceremony in Barcelona, Spain, yesterday evening, Vodafone was awarded Best Roaming Product or Service and Best Broadcast Commercial. The awards were given for two Vodafone pricing initiatives that were specifically designed to drive usage and deliver greater value to Vodafone's customers.

Best Roaming Product or Service

Vodafone Passport introduced a breakthrough roaming pricing architecture for Vodafone and its partner networks around the world, resulting in unmatched simplicity and value for customers by enabling them to keep their domestic frame of reference abroad.

Vodafone Passport customers can top-up in the same way they do at home, access voicemail and use the same shortcodes. More importantly, whilst abroad, for a one-off connection fee per call, customers can make calls using their domestic tariff, in most cases including free minute bundles, and receive calls at no further charge.

Vodafone Passport is proving extremely popular and over 5 million Vodafone customers have already subscribed with more than 100,000 joining each week.

Best Broadcast Commercial

Vodafone UK's Stop The Clock broadcast campaign highlighted the innovative Vodafone UK price plan that enables customers to talk for up to 60 minutes for the price of three minutes at evenings and weekends.

Vodafone UK's research indicated that a large number of consumers used landlines for longer conversations, due to perceived cost, and because the mobile phone was seen as just for emergency or short functional calls. As mobile value campaigns had done little to address this perception, Vodafone UK set out to develop a broadcast campaign to communicate 'Stop The Clock' and associate Vodafone with longer conversations.

Arun Sarin, Chief Executive, Vodafone, said:

We are delighted to have received GSM Association Awards for Vodafone Passport and Vodafone UK's 'Stop the Clock', two innovative services which provide great value to our customers and have successfully driven customer usage.

To date, over 5 million customers have subscribed to Vodafone Passport and our research shows these customers are both talking more, and paying less, for mobile calls when abroad. With Vodafone Passport, average roaming costs per minute have fallen by over 30% since last year.

Vodafone UK have also had great success with their 'Stop The Clock' campaign. Customers are now making up to 21% more calls, with call duration 56% longer than before.

VODAFONE PARTNERS WITH MOBILTEL - EXPANDING

THE VODAFONE COMMUNITY IN EUROPE

Vodafone, the world's leading mobile network operator, today announces it has signed a Partner Agreement with Mobiltel, the Bulgarian mobile operator of Telekom Austria.

Under the terms of the agreement, Mobiltel will be able to provide their customers with Vodafone products and services for international voice and data roaming, business and consumer propositions.

Vodafone's products and services will be dual branded in Bulgaria by Mobiltel, combining Mobiltel's nationally recognised brand with Vodafone's global brand.

The mutually beneficial relationship also provides Vodafone, its subsidiaries, affiliates, joint ventures and Partner customers with seamless access to Vodafone's international mobile services whilst travelling in Bulgaria.

In addition, the agreement provides scope for close co-operation on multinational corporate accounts and for Mobiltel to benefit from Vodafone's handset procurement when launching Vodafone's products and services in Bulgaria.

Our strategic relationship with Mobiltel significantly enhances Vodafone's service footprint in Central Europe and builds upon our excellent relationship with members of the Mobilkom Austria Group. Vodafone is increasingly able to offer its customers a seamless service offering when travelling in Central Europe, with a presence in Austria, Bulgaria, Croatia, Czech Republic, Slovenia, Hungary and Romania, said Arun Sarin, Chief Executive at Vodafone. We intend to develop our relationship with Mobiltel to ensure both Vodafone and Mobiltel customers have the very best in mobile services.

Josef Vinatzer, Chief Executive, Mobiltel, said: With this strategic cooperation we strengthen our position as the undisputed market leader who innovates the telecom market in Bulgaria. The partnership allows us to immediately broaden our portfolio with the best and very successful telecom products and services. Vodafone will prove to be our natural partner to further innovate and develop the telecom market in Bulgaria .

Including Mobiltel, Vodafone now has Partner Networks in 32 markets, covering the Americas, Africa, Europe and Asia.
