LLOYDS BANKING GROUP EXCEEDS PRA STRESS TEST THRESHOLD

Lloyds Banking Group plc (the Group), together with seven other financial institutions in the UK has been subject to the 2014 stress test conducted by the Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA).

The Group welcomes this assessment of the resilience to adverse market developments and its contribution to the overall assessment of systemic risk in the UK financial system. The test assesses banks' capital adequacy against a 4.5 per cent Common Equity Tier 1 (CET1) capital threshold.

UK domestic banks were a particular focus of the stress test. The key assumptions in the stress test included the UK house price index falling 35 per cent and unemployment peaking at 11.8 per cent, resulting in a material impact on those UK banks which are significantly exposed to the UK housing market. The stress test, by its nature and design, had less focus on banks with investment banking and/or overseas operations.

Result of stress test

The Group exceeds the capital threshold set out for the purpose of the stress test. In the stress scenario the Group's estimated CET1 ratio on a CRD IV basis, as implemented by the PRA, was 5.3 per cent post-mitigating actions and 5.0 per cent pre-mitigating actions, compared with a reported CET1 ratio of 10.1 per cent at 31 December 2013.

The Group is not required to take any action as a result of this stress test and will continue to ensure that its robust capital position is maintained.

Group Chief Executive, António Horta-Osório said:

'We are pleased to have exceeded the PRA stress test threshold under a severe UK-focused assessment. These results are a clear demonstration of the progress the Group has made over the first two full years of our strategic plan, which was announced in June 2011. The stress test was based on our balance sheet as at the end of 2013 and since then we have made further significant progress in strengthening our capital position and delivering on our strategy.'

The PRA stress test is based on the Group's capital position at 31 December 2013. Since then the Group has made further significant progress and in the first nine months of 2014 has generated a 1.9 per cent increase in its CET1 ratio from underlying earnings growth and further de-risking of the balance sheet. The Group has also issued Additional Tier 1 contingent capital in H1 2014 which would, if triggered, contribute around a further 2 per cent to the CET1 ratio in a stress scenario.

Under the stress test the Group's leverage ratio was 2.6 per cent post-mitigating actions and 2.4 per cent pre-mitigating actions. The issuance of the Additional Tier 1 contingent capital has since contributed around an additional net 0.5 per cent to the leverage ratio. The Group's reported leverage ratio at the end of Q3 2014 was 4.7 per cent.

Further details

Details of the PRA approach to the stress test and the detailed results in relation to all participating banks are available from the PRA website.

Further information on the Group's financial performance will be available on 27 February 2015 when we issue our 2014 full year results.
