Item 7.01. Regulation FD

Seagate will be meeting with investors at a conference on December 1, 2005 at which company executives will be providing an update to the business outlook for both the second fiscal quarter ending on December 30, 2005 and fiscal year 2006 ending on June 30, 2006.

Specifically the company will discuss the following with investors:

Fiscal Q2 2006

The company has experienced better than expected demand and product mix for desktop class storage products.

Demand for notebook storage products remains strong. Additionally, supply of notebook drives continues to be constrained by the availability of glass substrates.

Pricing, in aggregate, is anticipated to be slightly better than expected.

The demand and pricing environment in the month of December will heavily influence the company's financial performance for the December quarter.

Given the above, the company now expects revenue of approximately $2.2 billion, operating expenses, defined as R&D and SG&A, of approximately $280 million, and diluted earnings per share, excluding non-cash stock based compensation, to be in the range of $0.53-$0.57. Charges for non-cash stock based compensation are expected to be approximately $0.04 per share, which equates to GAAP diluted earnings per share of $0.49-$0.53.

Fiscal 2006

Due to the dynamic nature of the disc drive industry, the outlook with respect to the entire fiscal 2006 is subject to greater variability and less certainty.

The company's fiscal 2006 outlook assumes:

The total available market (TAM) for enterprise storage products is expected to be comparable to the September and December quarters.

The TAM for desktop storage products is expected to experience historically normal seasonality.

Edgar Filing: SEAGATE TECHNOLOGY - Form 8-K

The TAM for notebook storage products is expected to experience a modest decline compared to the December quarter.

The TAM for consumer electronic storage products is expected to increase sequentially as compared to the December quarter.

Price erosion in each market is expected to be at the mid-point or better of historical norms, and therefore the company anticipates normal price competition.

Seagate executes to plan, specifically in relation to:

qualification and ramp of the 80GB per platter, 2.5" notebook drive, completion of OEM qualifications and ramp of the 160GB per platter, 3.5" desktop class drive, sequential growth in notebook unit shipments, continued success in penetrating near-line storage market with high capacity 7200rpm drives, continued penetration in the retail market with our branded products, and improvement in the supply of both aluminum and glass substrates.

Given the above assumptions, the company expects diluted earnings per share for fiscal 2006, excluding non-cash stock based compensation, to be approximately $2.00. Charges for non-cash stock based compensation are expected to be approximately $0.16 per share, which equates to GAAP diluted earnings per share of approximately $1.84.

Information concerning additional factors that could cause results to differ materially from those projected in the forward-looking statements is contained in the company's Annual Report on Form 10-K as filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on August 1, 2005 and in the company's Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q as filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on October 28, 2005.
