Use of Non-GAAP Measures

The estimates of Adjusted EBITDA, Operating Income (non-GAAP) and Gross Margin (non-GAAP), as they are presented above, were calculated using GAAP and other measures which are derived from GAAP, but such estimates were not calculated and are not presented in accordance with GAAP and therefore constitute non-GAAP financial measures within the meaning of applicable rules and regulations of the SEC (which we refer to as non-GAAP financial measures). The estimates of Adjusted EBITDA exclude depreciation, amortization, stock-based compensation and related payroll costs, restructuring and employee separation expenses, and impairment of long-lived assets, as well as other income and expense and provision for taxes, which are included in net income. The estimates of Operating Income (non-GAAP) exclude stock-based compensation and related payroll costs, restructuring and employee separation expenses, and impairment of long-lived assets, as well as other income and expense and provision for taxes, which are included in net income. The estimates for Gross Margin (non-GAAP) exclude stock-based compensation and related payroll costs, restructuring and employee separation expenses, and impairment of long-lived assets. Our management believes that these non-GAAP financial measures better reflect our operating performance as they exclude the effects of certain non-cash expenses that are not necessarily representative of underlying trends in our performance. Mindspeed uses these non-GAAP financial measures to enhance its understanding of its operating performance and improve its planning and budgeting processes. Mindspeed believes that the use of these non-GAAP financial measures provides useful information to management and the board of directors regarding financial and business trends relating to Mindspeed's financial condition and results of operations, particularly by excluding certain expense and income items that we believe are not indicative of its core operating results. In addition, Adjusted EBITDA, Operating Income (non-GAAP) and Gross Margin (non-GAAP) are commonly used as a basis for investors and analysts to evaluate and compare the periodic and future operating performance and value of companies within the Mindspeed's industry.
