3 Before we get started Welcome, and thanks for being here with us. A few legal considerations before we get started. FOR MEETINGS WITH A JOINT GE/BHI AUDIENCE During the meeting, feel free to ask questions, however, be mindful of your obligation to protect the secrecy of each company's confidential information. Do not disclose competitively sensitive information to the combined audience. When you return to work after this meeting, continue to conduct business as usual until the close of the transaction. This means that: Neither GE nor Baker Hughes may direct or influence the ordinary business decisions of the other company. GE and Baker Hughes must continue to compete vigorously, including and especially with each other. Among other things, the companies cannot exchange competitively sensitive information that is not necessary for integration planning. Where GE and Baker Hughes compete today, continue to compete vigorously just as you always have. Avoid anything that would suggest the companies are not competing with each other; Where GE and Baker Hughes do not compete today, continue to conduct business as you would prior to the transaction announcement. Avoid anything that would suggest that one company is improperly directing the activities of the other company pre-close; Always remember, both companies may plan for integration prior to closing, but must not take steps to implement the planned activities; and Keep in mind that anything you may hear today is not intended to be shared outside our respective companies. Finally, if you have any questions on legal matters relating to integration planning, please contact your Legal department.

Physical Meets Digital Predix is General Electric's software platform for the collection of data from industrial machines. GE expects Predix to do for factories and plants what Apple's iOS did for cell phones. Software was introduced to the market and made available to all companies in 2015. Oil and gas applications- Machine and equipment health- Reliability management- Maintenance and optimization. We build intelligent tools that produce data on performance and efficiency- Predix will give us the ability to use data in new ways. With Predix, we will be able to use data in entirely new ways. FTeX™ advanced wireline formation pressure testing service. 8 Let me drill down into digital and why this is really one of the unique elements of the value creation potential of this combination. GE has been investing in digital capabilities and its Predix application. This is sort of like Windows for industrial operations. It is a way of monitoring performance and mining data that can be analyzed and fed back into operations for improved performance. It is used for asset performance, reliability and performance management as well as process optimization for all aspects of our business. We build intelligent tools that produce data on performance and efficiency. With Predix we will be able to use that data in an entirely new way.

Now we'll look at an overview of the major milestones in the integration planning process ... Note that this timeline reflects the sequence of events, and not the actual amount of time between events. Many of these milestones reflect ongoing efforts. The journey to the new company requires a coordinated integration planning program that involves key integration workstreams across business regions, functional areas, product and service lines spanning both GE and BH. Across all areas of integration we are driving towards the milestones outlined here on the chart. You will see the timeline is ambitious - and we are working towards a close in the mid year. We are now finalizing the operating model and continuing to work on the strategic areas and critical milestones we need to prepare for Day 1 and beyond.

What Will Happen on Day 1? 13 Generally speaking, you will do the same thing you did the day before>Welcome Kit: need-to-know details, roadmapStill have access to critical business apps“Playbooks” developed, especially for Commercial teamStrong effort to connect with employees, customers, suppliers, and investors Generally speaking, most employees will do the same thing they did the day before - Business continuity is a high priority - We need to keep the customer front and center "Welcome Kit" will contain need-to-know details, and explain what to expect next - Will be available online on Day 1, and it will be printed for employees in locations where computers are not readily accessible Still have access to critical business apps - There will be a staged approach to any changes in the IT landscape - You will have a new intranet homepage Playbooks - There will be clearly defined actions to take Strong effort to connect with employees and customers - You will be hearing from Lorenzo Simonelli on Day 1 and your local leader in the following days - New leadership team will be on the road to connect with as many employees as possible - High-level customer meetings will take place, and the commercial team will have materials to connect with customers - We will also communicate with suppliers - There will be an investor roadshow - There will be regular updates via [blank]

Creating a New Company Aspiring to create a new culture Launching a brand that resonates with employees and customers alike Collecting insights to build on, pitfalls to avoid “Edge Group” providing ongoing candid feedback Brand message testing with employees, customers Culture Survey 29% combined response rate More In-depth Culture Assessments underway We are working hard to understand each other and how we work - and we are using a variety of ways to "listen" to what each organization has to say. It's more than just examining how things work, and how we describe our culture; it's also about creating something entirely new - a culture we aspire to ... We want to take advantage of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. We have the freedom to create something really quite special. We started in February with interviews with The Edge Group - a small group of employees from each side who are not involved in the integration planning. We call on them to give us candid feedback on our assumptions and plans for Day 1. We sent a Culture Survey to randomly selected employees from both companies, and more than 5,700 responded - which tells us that a lot of employees are interested and engaged. We are going to share those results with you in early April. We are doing a lot of work with our brand strategy - this is our chance to define who we are and what we stand for - so we are gathering input from employees - randomly selected to receive a survey testing various messages. We are also talking to customers on both sides. We are digging deeper into the culture considerations and aspirations with small-group assessments and employee interviews in late March I hope what comes across is that we are very serious about the people side of things - and we are very serious about how we present ourselves to the world at large. We take the information we are gathering into consideration at all levels - to ensure we address both the cultural opportunities and challenges that lie ahead.

Stay Focused on our Customers

18 Caution Concerning Forward-Looking Statements This communication contains “forward-looking” statements as that term is defined in Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, including statements regarding the proposed transaction between GE and Baker Hughes. All statements, other than historical facts, including statements regarding the expected timing and structure of the proposed transaction; the ability of the parties to complete the proposed transaction considering the various closing conditions; the expected benefits of the proposed transaction such as improved operations, enhanced revenues and cash flow, synergies, growth potential, market profile, customers’ business plans and financial strength; the competitive ability and position of the combined company following completion of the proposed transaction, including the projected impact on GE’s earnings per share; oil and natural gas market conditions; costs and availability of resources; legal, economic and regulatory conditions; and any assumptions underlying any of the foregoing, are forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements concern future circumstances and results and other statements that are not historical facts and are sometimes identified by the words “may,” “will,” “should,” “potential,” “intend,” “expect,” “endeavor,” “seek,” “anticipate,” “estimate,” “overestimate,” “believe,” “could,” “project,” “predict,” “continue,” “target” or other similar words or expressions. Forward-looking statements are based upon current plans, estimates and expectations that are subject to risks, uncertainties and assumptions. Should one or more of these risks or uncertainties materialize, or should underlying assumptions prove incorrect, actual results may vary materially from those indicated or anticipated by such forward-looking statements. The inclusion of such statements should not be regarded as a representation that such plans, estimates or expectations will be achieved. Important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from such plans, estimates or expectations include, among others, (1) that one or more closing conditions to the transaction, including certain regulatory approvals, may not be satisfied or waived, on a timely basis or otherwise, including that a governmental entity may prohibit, delay or refuse to grant approval for the consummation of the proposed transaction, may require conditions, limitations or restrictions in connection with such approvals or that the required approval by the stockholders of Baker Hughes may not be obtained; (2) the risk that the proposed transaction may not be completed in the time frame expected by GE or Baker Hughes, or at all; (3) unexpected costs, charges or expenses resulting from the proposed transaction; (4) uncertainty of the expected financial performance of the combined company following completion of the proposed transaction; (5) failure to realize the anticipated benefits of the proposed transaction, including as a result of delay in completing the proposed transaction or integrating the businesses of GE, Baker Hughes and Newco; (6) the ability of the combined company to implement its business strategy; (7) difficulties and delays in achieving revenue and cost synergies of the combined company; (8) inability to retain and hire key personnel; (9) the occurrence of any event that could give rise to termination of the proposed transaction; (10) the risk that stockholder litigation in connection with the proposed transaction or other settlements or investigations may affect the timing or occurrence of the contemplated merger or result in significant costs of defense, indemnification and liability; (11) evolving legal, regulatory and tax regimes; (12) changes in general economic and/or industry specific conditions, including oil price changes; (13) actions by third parties, including government agencies; and (14) other risk factors as detailed from time to time in GE’s and Baker Hughes’ reports filed with the SEC, including GE’s and Baker Hughes’ annual report on Form 10-K, periodic quarterly reports on Form 10-Q, periodic current reports on Form 8-K and other documents filed with the SEC. The foregoing list of important factors is not exclusive. Any forward-looking statements speak only as of the date of this communication. Neither GE nor Baker Hughes undertakes any obligation to update any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information or developments, future events or otherwise, except as required by law. Readers are cautioned not to place undue reliance on any of these forward-looking statements.
