To All Stifel Associates:

I am delighted to report that this morning we announced a strategic merger with San Francisco-based Thomas Weisel Partners (NASDAQ: TWPG). The combination will form a premier middle-market investment bank with estimated annual revenues of approximately $1.6 billion, derived from consensus estimates, and a $2.0 billion pro forma market capitalization. Stifel will remain headquartered in St. Louis, with significant presence in Baltimore, New York, San Francisco and Toronto. This merger is consistent with our focus on building Stifel in a way that reinforces our values, creates a well-balanced platform and accelerates our growth. The press release is attached, along with additional information on the transaction.

Putting Stifel and Thomas Weisel Partners together is expected to produce many benefits. Chief among them is the combination of our investment banking, research, sales and trading, and brokerage services with Thomas Weisel Partners' strong venture capital relationships and their expertise in growth companies. Our Global Wealth Management and Fixed Income divisions will benefit from increased access to and analysis of technology, media, telecommunications, healthcare and energy companies.

This merger is attractive for a number of reasons.

Dramatically expands Stifel's footprint in three critical growth engines of the US economy: Technology, Healthcare and Energy

There is virtually no overlap in investment banking and minimal overlap in research coverage

The combination fast tracks Stifel's ongoing investment banking growth, which would otherwise take years to achieve

Our Global Wealth Management group, with nearly $100 billion in client assets, fits very well with TWP's investment bank

Creates a leadership position in research and investment banking, especially in Technology, Healthcare, and Natural Resources, three areas with significant opportunity

Creates the largest U.S. equity research platform as measured by companies under coverage and the largest provider of small cap research coverage in the U.S.

Our strengths in investment banking match well with TWP's focus on growth sectors of Technology, Healthcare and Natural Resources

Strengthens our profile in the venture capital community, where TWP maintains key relationships

Enhances our lead manager credentials in equities and combines providers of world class M&A advice

Expands our institutional equity business both domestically and internationally

Expands Stifel's Global Wealth Management Division by adding TWP's asset management business with more than $1.6 billion in assets under management

Maintains revenue balance between the Institutional Group (formerly Capital Markets) and Global Wealth Management

Combines a senior management team having a strong cultural fit

We firmly believe this merger will benefit our clients, our associates and the shareholders of our company. This merger is the continuation of our record of growth and I want to thank you for your continued commitment to excellence.

Deal Facts:

Price: $7.60 per share based on an SF price of $55.74 (as of 4/23/10) $318 million in aggregate consideration (including restricted stock, net of taxes)

Terms: Fixed exchange ratio of 0.1364 Stifel shares for each TWPG share

Closing: On or about June 30, 2010

What does this merger mean?

The merger dramatically expands Stifel's footprint in three critical growth engines of the US economy: Technology, Healthcare, & Energy. This transaction also fast tracks Stifel's ongoing investment banking growth. In the short term, we need to continue to execute on our business plan. All coverage and account overlaps will be rectified prior to closing, which is subject to TWPG shareholder approval and other usual customary closing conditions. The transaction is expected to close on or about June 30, 2010.

What is the goal of the combination?

The merger will create a premier middle-market investment bank with exposure to all sectors of the economy. The combined firm is expected to generate approximately $1.6 billion in revenues (based upon consensus estimates), have a $2.0 billion pro forma market capitalization and approximately $1.0 billion in pro forma equity capital.

What is the name of the firm?

The name of the parent will remain Stifel Financial Corp. Consideration is being given to appropriate strategies to take advantage of the recognition of and value in the Weisel name.

What role will TWP management have?

The Executive Committee members of TWP will be integrated within Stifel's management structure. Thomas Weisel will take an active role as Co-Chairman of the combined company.

What is the impact on Global Wealth Management?

Global Wealth Management will benefit from increased access to and analysis of technology, media, telecommunications, healthcare and North American energy companies as well as expanded product offerings in asset management.

How does this affect my clients?

The combination is expected to enhance the product offerings and service capabilities of research, sales & trading, investment banking and fixed income.

Will there be any non-compensation savings overall?

Yes, there will be significant savings in brokerage operations, real estate and other cost rationalizations.
