PART I

ITEM 1. Business

Shopsmith, Inc., an Ohio corporation organized in 1972 (the Company), is engaged in the production and marketing of power woodworking tools designed primarily for the home workshop. The principal line of power tools marketed under the name Shopsmith, a registered trademark, dates back to 1946 and was purchased by the Company in 1972.

The line is built around the Shopsmith MARK V, a multi-purpose tool, and includes separate function special purpose tools that may be mounted on the MARK V or used independently. The Company distributes these tools directly to consumers through demonstration programs (at which sales representatives solicit orders), telephone sales solicitation, Internet and mail order. During the fiscal year ended March 30, 2002, Shopsmith branded products accounted for substantially all of the net sales of the Company. The Company manufactures a substantial majority of products sold (as measured by sales dollar volume).

Shopsmith MARK V, Special Purpose Tools and Major Accessories

The Shopsmith MARK V is a compact power woodworking tool which performs the functions of five separate tools: a table saw, a wood lathe, a disc sander, a horizontal boring machine, and a vertical drill press. The engineering of the MARK V is such that special purpose tools may be mounted on and powered by the MARK V. The special purpose tools, a jointer, a beltsander, a bandsaw, a planer, a scroll saw, and a strip sander, may also be operated as free standing tools with a stand and power system.

Other products include MARK V accessories such as a lathe duplicator, which allows a woodworker to duplicate original turnings and a dust collector that, when used with the appropriate fixtures for the MARK V and other Shopsmith products, provides for virtually dust-free woodworking.

The Company also offers a line of accessories to its power tool line. These accessories, only a few of which are manufactured by the Company, include casters, custom saw blades, and molding attachments. Shopsmith accessories are sold directly to the consumer through the same marketing channels used for the Shopsmith power tool line.

Seasonality and Working Capital

The Company's business is seasonal, with the rate of incoming orders being lowest during the summer months. Consequently, cash requirements are higher during this period of the fiscal year and the Company generally experiences a tightening of its liquidity position.

Raw Materials and Components

The principal components and materials used by the Company in the production of its products include aluminum die-castings, iron sand castings, metal stampings, screw machine products, plastics and electric motors. The Company relies on sole sources of supply for some of its components and materials. To reduce costs, the Company uses foreign producers as sources for some parts and products.

Competition

The power woodworking equipment business is highly competitive and the MARK V and the Company's other products must compete against the single purpose tools sold by Delta, Power Matic, Black and Decker, Sears and other domestic and foreign corporations.

The Company considers quality, customer service, method of marketing, price and value to be the principal bases of competition in the power woodworking equipment industry.

Shareholders and Board of Directors
Shopsmith, Inc.
Dayton, Ohio

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Shopsmith, Inc. and Subsidiaries as of March 30, 2002 and March 31, 2001 and the related consolidated statements of operations, changes in shareholders' equity, and cash flows for the years ended March 30, 2002, March 31, 2001 and April 1, 2000. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the consolidated financial position of Shopsmith, Inc. and Subsidiaries as of March 30, 2002 and March 31, 2001 and the consolidated results of its operations and its cash flows for the years ended March 30, 2002, March 31, 2001 and April 1, 2000, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.
